The Finest Island

"Undoubtedly the finest Island of it's size in the world"

Marco Polo, 13th Century Explorer

RACE START - POINT PEDRO

Jaffna is a city located in the Northern tip of Sri Lanka. It has opened its doors to tourism in 2009. The city has a lot of influence from India, you can see this on the streets and in their food which is different from Central or South Sri Lanka.

You've probably heard of Race Across America, Race Across Europe but there is nothing like #RaceThePearl. It's long enough to push your body and mind to boundaries beyond imagination, feast your eyes in the glory of nature, let your mind float searching for answers to life and still be at work on Monday morning 'There ^{is} nothing else like it!

Welcome to an epic, exotic and exhilarating race that could change your life !

YASAS HEWAGE,
Race Founder & Rider

RACE THE PEARL is a 24 Hr Cycling Challenge that will push all known physical and mental boundaries on an attempt to ride a Bicycle across the Pearl of the Indian Ocean. Some will Race and some will Ride.

The route is between the furthest two points of Point Dondra and Point Pedro , stacking up 600 kms and will almost bisect the island taking you through pan flat straight arrow roads, uphills and downhills, green and barren land, while riding through day and night, rain and shine . RACE THE PEARL is an exhilarating, exotic and epic challenge that stacks up against any Ultra Endurance Event in the World. The men & women of steel who complete this will cherish the prestigious ' Pearl Jersey ' and add to the collection of stories of living life beyond limits !

Being the largest of the pheasants, the peacock is a native bird in Sri Lanka . Most often, the ones that you see on photographs with the beautiful plumage are the male peacocks – after which the simile 'proud as a peacock' was formed!

The Sri Lankan leopard has a tawny or rusty yellow coat with dark spots and close-set rosettes, which are smaller than in Indian leopards. They are solitary hunters, with the exception of females with young. They prefer hunting at night, but are also active during dawn & dusk, and daytime hours.

The Sri Lankan sub-species is the largest and also the darkest of the Asian elephants, with patches of depigmentation—areas with no skin color—on its ears, face, trunk and belly

- 4 The 24 Hour Solo and 24 Hour Team athletes are eligible to earn the Prestigious Pearl Jersey by beating the 24 Hour Clock .
- 5 The 24 Hour Solo Riders Will get the exquisite 'Pearl Ring'

Ride as often as you could

Start with 'one hour', time it & record it

Every week increase by 20 minutes

Every other week do the 'one hour' in the same route (e.g., spinner circuit), but try to improve your timing gradually. Keep it simple & have fun. After all this is just a very long bicycle ride 😊

(Any bicycle is ok, but adjust to suit your height. There is enough time to borrow, rent, buy the right bicycle.)

Timing		Goal
48 hours Before Race	Take high Gi- carbohydrate food (Not white bread) including carbohydrate snacks in between main meals . Whole grain food , Kurakkan Pittu, Kaupi, Red rice , Manioc etc . There is no need to over eat . Do Keep sipping water as well	Store optimum energy in your muscles for the first 90 minutes of the race. So you could have 1200 – 1400 calories stored in glycogen
Race Day Breakfast	Have a similar carbohydrate meal 2 hours before the race . Do not try anything new on race day . Two hours leading up to the race, sip on 500-750 ml of the home made sports drink
During Race	The body can take in around 60-90g of carbohydrate per hour during exercise	You can try to Keep up with the extensive calorie burn rate (aprox 1000 calories p/h) at a pro race but never catch up so keep fueling On bike we Could take max 1500 calories over 4 hours
Eat: First 20 minutes of the race	One Home made Energy/Ajani bar/ or Peanut butter Brand Crackers ☺/ Two Thala Gulis ☺. Sesame seed balls
Eat: Every 20 mins	20/20 Rule : Take 20g Carbohydrate every 20 mins (One home made energy bar (200 Cal) or one Anamalu Banana (100 cal) 60g of Carbs will give 240 calories
Drink: 60 to 90 mins to race finish	Have a cola drink (150 cal) In Ultra Race may be every 4 hours
Drink – Electrolytes & Water	One bottle of water /one bottle of electrolytes (specially with sodium (300 mg)) Take Aprox 1 ltr of liquid per hour (depends on time of day)
Post Race Recovery	Have a Anamalu/banana and a yoghurt within 20 minutes of race finish (Carb and Protein) . Within 90 mins celebrate with a Sri Lankan rice & curry with two eggs. (more proteins) Or some mung eta. In ultra race like Race The Peral , you will have a similar mid day meal	Body is still asking for energy . Need help it recover

Energizing the Race

In 2015 Spinner Introduced the scientific approach to sports nutrition in Sri Lanka with SIS (Science in Sports) UK. This was to help athletes and cyclists understand the four principles of 1) Hydration , 2) Energy , 3) Recovery & 4) Rebuild. Many events including Ironman70.3Colombo were sponsored and supported . The Covid-19 pandemic made us change how we look at things and the need to simplify and make things affordable . Now we totally fuel our rides and races from natural and locally available nutrition and it's doable , but remember ..

'Eat before you are hungry drink before you are thirsty '

The Birth Growth of #TheUltraCyclist

Ultra endurance cycling is a subcategory of cycling that involves long-distance cycling events that can last for 24 hours , several days or even weeks, covering distances ranging from 1,000 to 5,000 kilometers. These events require riders to have exceptional physical and mental endurance as they cycle for extended periods, often without rest.

The definition of ultra endurance cycling varies depending on the event, but generally, it refers to a distance of 1,000 kilometers or more, with a time limit that ranges from 24hours to several days to several weeks. The first ultra endurance cycling event can be traced back to the 1890s, when the first edition of Paris-Brest-Paris (PBP) was held. This event covered a distance of 1,200 kilometers, and riders had to complete the distance in less than 90 hours.

Over the years, ultra endurance cycling has evolved, with more events being introduced across the globe. One of the most famous ultra endurance cycling events is the Race Across America (RAAM), which was first held in 1982. The race covers a distance of 3,000 miles (4,800 kilometers), and riders have to complete the distance in under 12 days. RAAM has gained popularity over the years and is now considered the ultimate test of endurance cycling.

The growth of ultra endurance cycling events can be attributed to several factors, including the increasing popularity of cycling as a sport, the availability of better cycling equipment, and advances in nutrition and training techniques. Additionally, ultra endurance cycling has gained more attention in recent years, thanks to the participation of high-profile athletes and the increased media coverage of these events.

The physical demands of ultra endurance cycling events can be challenging, with riders experiencing physical and mental fatigue, sleep deprivation, and extreme weather conditions. However, these events also offer a unique opportunity for riders to test their limits and push themselves beyond their perceived boundaries.

While the physical demands of ultra endurance cycling can be challenging, it offers a unique opportunity for riders to push themselves to their limits and achieve their personal best.
